LOOK AT F. D. R., TOO!

The Richmond Times Dispatch in its editorial columns Monday commented at some length upon pictures of Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt taken during their recent conference, show that Mr. Churchill were zippered about. The "F. D." then wondered if our English brothers were zippers by inclination or whether you had to dress and run for shelter at the sounding of the air raid alarm.

We cannot add to the discussion of Mr. Churchill's zippers, but we can and do point out that the same picture showed that Mr. Roosevelt's trousers were an inch and a half too long!

Was Mr. Roosevelt doing his bit for the British Navy by scrubbing the royal decks with his trouser cuffs?

We want your name on our list as a regular subscriber.

CONFUSING GAS SITUATION

If the entire national defense effort is being bungled the way the attempt to conserve gasoline is being bungled, then America . . . and our allies . . . are in for a bad day.

In recent weeks Harold Ickes has jumped from scheme to scheme in an entirely fruitless muddling of the gasoline conservation program.

Apparently none of the proposals have the sanction of law. The latest proposal is to cut service stations by ten per cent of sales of the peak month of the year . . . which is no savings at all! Nor do we believe it practical to try to issue ration cards to individual motorists.

We suggest that this administration will not get public cooperation until it "sells" the public more into its confidence as to its intentions. There is an apparent concerted effort in Washington to keep the public in the dark as much as possible. Maybe they still figure we're "too dumb to understand!"

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE WRITER OF HEBREWS EXPLAINS THE NEW COVENANT

LESSON TEXT—Hebrews 9:11-22.

GOLDEN TEXT—Being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him.—Hebrews 5:9.

The infinite superiority of the Lord Jesus Christ, in both person and work, is a theme which the writer of Hebrews presented to encourage Hebrew Christians who were suffering much for their faith (Heb. 10:32) and were being tempted to turn back to Judaism (Heb. 2:1; 3:12). His purpose was not only to stem the tide of unbelief and discouragement, but to urge them to go on to better things (6:1-3) because of the better covenant under which they had come as believers in Christ.

The portion of the chapter before us deals with the heart of the matter in presenting the sacrifice of Christ as being superior to all the sacrifices of the Old Testament. The verses are somewhat difficult to outline, but the following, adapted in a measure from Dr. W. H. Griffith Thomas, will be helpful.

I. The Ministry of Christ—a Better Ministry (vv. 11-14).

Every act of worship calls for a sanctuary and a worshiper. Under the old covenant the Jews were familiar with the tabernacle into which their priests went daily, and the holy of holies into which the high priest went once a year with the blood of goats and bulls; but now under the new covenant they had

1. A Better Priest and Sanctuary (v. 11).

No longer do we need the mediating priesthood of a fellow man set apart for that office, for Christ Himself has become a High Priest and is the "one mediator between God and men" (1 Tim. 2:5), yet He is not one "who cannot be touched with the feelings of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4:15).

2. A Better Sacrifice and Blessing (v. 12).

The blood of Christ, the perfect and final sacrifice for sin, resulted in a once-for-all solution of the sin problem and provided the blessing of eternal redemption.

3. A Better Result (vv. 13, 14).

The sacrifices of the Mosaic ritual had an outward result. They "removed ceremonial disabilities, they restored the unclean to fellowship, they kept the chosen people in covenant relation with God." They "did sanctify and cleanse the flesh; how much more the blood of Christ" (Moorehead). His sacrifice gave spiritual cleansing, the cleansing of the "conscience from dead works to serve the living God" (v. 14).

II. The Ministry of Christ—an Efficacious Ministry (vv. 15-22).

This ministry of our High Priest, Christ, is well characterized by the word "efficacious," which means "having the effective energy to produce an effect." He came into the world "to save sinners" (I Tim. 1:15), and He did it. We note

1. The Power of the New Ministry (v. 15).

The surrender of Christ even unto death gives validity and efficacy to the new covenant. "All the transgressions of the old covenant had been treasured up; the death of Christ gave satisfaction to all that that covenant could claim, and brought release. So the Mediator of the new covenant begins an entirely new economy, with sin put away by the sacrifice of Himself, and an open path to the beginning of a new life in the favor and power of God" (Andrew Murray).

2. The Guarantee of the New Ministry (vv. 16, 17).

Speaking of our redemption as an eternal inheritance (v. 15) naturally leads to the thought that a testament or will does not become effective until the death of the testator. God has "blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ: according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world" (Eph. 1:3, 4). He has bequeathed all that to us, and the bequest is made certain by His death. That means that not only our salvation, but "everything we have had, even our temporal mercies, are a part of those purchased and bequeathed blessings; everything is sanctified by the precious death of our Lord Jesus Christ.

3. The Confirmation of the New Ministry (vv. 18-22).

The shedding of blood on Calvary's tree for the remission of sin was not a new or strange thing. The proof for that is given by referring to all of the old covenant procedure for the cleansing of the sinner. How was it brought about? Through blood. In that Old Testament covenant it was the blood of goats and bulls, not sufficient to perfectly cleanse the spirit of man nor give him once-for-all remission, but nonetheless a type of the better sacrifice of the Lamb of God.

Then "let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering (for he is faithful that promised.)" (Heb. 10:23).

By L. L. STEVENSON

New York is not exactly kind to Cupid. There are no shady lanes. Park benches are usually directly in line with arc lights while guardians of the law pass frequently and the procession of curious pedestrians goes on and on. Consequently, youngsters do much hand holding on bus tops or in public places while those who are more ingenious go to Grand Central or the Pennsylvania station, not to take trains but to exchange kisses since osculation in railway terminals is so common that it excites no notice. But if Cupid does manage to land an arrow with such accuracy a wedding date is set, New York is more than willing to take a hand and relieve the prospective bride and her bridegroom of all details connected with the ceremony. There is a fee attached to such services of course.

For instance, one firm advertises a "complete wedding" for as little as $100. Unfortunately, I have lost the ad so cannot tell what all is included but I do remember engraved invitations and a wedding breakfast. The bridal outfit was not included. But I am informed there are places where a bride may rent complete equipment even to a long veil. The bridegroom can be fixed out also at just about any clothes renting agency though there are some that specialize in wedding outfits for men which range from a top hat to shoes. There are also experts who tell the inexperienced just what is proper in the way of dress, invitation, etc. In fact, when it comes to weddings, no item seems to be overlooked.

Pictures for the newspapers need offer no trouble. A number of photographers have blanks with spaces for complete information regarding the bride and bridegroom, their place of birth, their families and even college degrees, if any. These pictures are submitted to the society editors. The bride's family pays for them and usually orders a couple of dozen for distribution. So, whether or not the pictures appear on the society pages, the photographer loses nothing. Incidentally, in New York there are matrimonial agencies that employ press agents.

Speaking of pictures, an old game played on out-of-towners who register at hotels, continues to flourish despite the number of times it has been exposed. As you may have learned, the guest is called by a representative of some outfit which has a name very similar to that of some reputable organization and informed that as the newspapers want his or her picture, a photographer will be sent up to take it. The pictures are actually made but instead of being offered to the newspapers, a high pressure salesmanship is used to sell prints at high prices to the one who posed.

• • •

Hotels try to protect their guests and in that connection, a manager told me that the best thing for anyone receiving such a call is to report the matter to the management. If it is a legitimate request and the guest is willing to have his or her picture published, the camera man is admitted. If he is a faker, he is tossed out more or less gently. And the guest is consequently saved a sum, which in some instances in the past, has run into the hundreds.

A dark-haired and attractive miss, whose grade school days are some time in the past, attended exercises in which a relative took part. In the course of the program, the children saluted the flag and M. A.'s hand went up as it had when she was still in pigtails. To her great surprise many of those about her looked at her strangely while others regarded her with open hostility. Then she looked at the kids and realized that a change had been made—also that the old salute is unpopular because of the use now made of it in Europe.

A British tar raced after a Fifth avenue bus to return the hat that had blown from the head of a pretty feminine passenger. After catching up with the bus three blocks down, as he handed back the headgear, he panted, "Running through New York traffic is a bit harder than chasing the Italian navy."

Everyday Items Put on List of Defense Needs

WASHINGTON—The government has put consumers tentatively on notice that they may have to step aside until defense needs are met on a long list of everyday items, ranging from mattresses and cameras to woolen underwear and fire extinguishers.

The list included wool, cotton, flannel and other types of cloth, wool and leather gloves, motion picture projection and sound equipment, medicinal chemicals, woolen and cotton-wool socks, hospital uniforms, and business office equipment such as addressing and duplicating machines.

These and other items were added to the list of "critical items" issued monthly by the priorities division of the Office of Production Management. In all there were some 40 items, raising the total number now classified as "critical" to approximately 300.

HAIR gets sunburned, too, you know, if exposed too long to the strong rays. It gets that rusty, shredded - wheat look. Whenever you're planning a long sprawl in the sun, take along protection for your locks. A bright printed kerchief. Or, still more becomingly feminine, a big floppy hat.

Navahos Dub Hitler 'Mustache Smeller'

And in Their Lingo 'Gourd Chin' Is Mussolini.

SANTA FE.—"Mustache Smeller" and "Gourd Chin" had better watch their step, for the Navahos and Apaches are on the warpath.

"Mustache Smeller," in the lingo of the Indians of the Southwest, is Adolf Hitler. "Gourd Chin" is Benito Mussolini.

They care little for the issues and international aspects of the war. They're interested only in Hitler and Mussolini.

Many are not waiting to be called up, but are volunteering. Among the volunteers was Diga-Chee-Bekis. The 80-year-old Navaho stalked into a selective service office on the reservation, voiced his contempt for dictators and announced he would like to join the air corps.

He was rejected, but many of his tribesmen are serving in the forces. The Navahos number more than 50,000 in western New Mexico and northeastern Arizona. They are the largest tribe in the nation.

They are peace-loving and content to tend their sheep and goats, but when registration day came more than 4,500 signed up for the draft.

"The big wind that speaks"—the Navaho agency's short wave radio—informs them when their number appears. The transmitter is at Window Rock, Ariz., and the news is picked up by some 400 receiving stations. It is then passed along by word of mouth until the selectee hears of it.

The Jicarilla Apaches and the Mescalero Apaches, likewise, answered the draft, call 100 per cent, but, unlike the Navahos, none of the Apaches was rejected because of physical handicaps.

The American BANKING System
Democracy at its Best

There are some 16,000 American banks, each owned and operated by local citizens. Separate in a sense—yet they are knit together into one great 'system' by the common aim of service. Responsive to the needs of each community, yet they are geared to meet the nation's needs instantly in its hour of crisis. There's nothing like it elsewhere; it's the envy of every other country; it's democracy functioning at its very best.
